Once upon a time in the Era of Gods ~~
There was a young and famous poet named Orpheus
He was also a musician.
He perfected the lyre, which was invented by Hermes, into a 7-string instrument
He played divine and beautiful music on the lyre
He had a gorgeous wife named Eurydice Unfortunately, less than a year into their marriage, Eurydice was bitten by a venomous snake in Aristaeus' forest Dying instantly, her soul was taken to the Underworld.
The devastated Orpheus took his lyre with him and travelled to the Underworld in a bid to retrieve Eurydice from the Underworld.

Orpheus' music and singing was so moving that it eventually melted Persephone's mind and she requested Hades to let Eurydice return to the world of the living again.
Hades allowed Eurydice's return to the Upper World with the sole condition that they must not looked back until both of them had reached the Upper world—

However, just as Orpheus was about to step into the Upper World, he wondered if Eurydice was still following him closely behind
He turned to look back—

In an instant,
Eurydice vanished and was drawn back into the Underworld
And Orpheus lost his beloved wife forever
